Workforce Trends

Population

Benewah County experienced fairly strong population growth in the early 1990s. Its rural lifestyle and great hunting and fishing opportunities persuaded many people to move there. Then the county stagnated during and after the 2001 recession before growth resumed from 2004 to 2008 as more retirees discovered its attractions. The recession reversed that resulting in population decreases until 2014 when the population had grown to 9,067.

From 2006 to 2016, the county's population has decreased but experienced growth of 57 people, a 0.6 percent increase, from 2015.

The county seat, St. Maries, had a population of 2,325 in 2015 while Plummer had a population of 1,019 and Tensed 120

Labor Force & Employment

Benewah County's economy remains heavily dependent on forest products. Over one in six jobs is in the forest products industry. Until 2004, the county had only 60 jobs in manufacturing outside forest products. But in 2006, the Coeur d'Alene Tribe purchased Berg Integrated Systems and moved it to Plummer, where it employed about 100 people. Since then, Berg built and moved to a larger facility in Post Falls and Ground Force, an international manufacturer of mining support equipment, expanded its operations into the old Berg plant in Plummer, where it continues to grow. Despite the county's beauty and outdoor recreational opportunities, tourism employs just 150. Dependence on forest products makes the county vulnerable to high unemployment, particularly following the collapse of the housing industry. Since 2006, extremely low lumber prices have reduced employment. However, lumber prices began rising in 2009 and have continued to increase.

western Benewah County into southern Kootenai County – has driven growth in the last 10 years. Today, 590 people work at its headquarters, retail stores, medical clinic, farm and school, and nearly 1,000 at its newly expanded casino, hotel and golf course in Worley just over the Kootenai County line.

Because so much of the county's income is from forests and farms, employment peaks in late summer and drops off as winter approaches, hitting its lowest level in spring when load limits on muddy roads force many loggers out of the woods. In 2008, for example, the unadjusted unemployment rate peaked at 16.9 percent in April and fell to 7 percent in August.

Economic Development Efforts

Benewah County is struggling to overcome a legacy of economic stagnation, which has hampered business growth. The number of private sector businesses with employees in Benewah County edged down from 308 in 2000 to 286 in 2010. However, the number began to rebound in 2012 and reached a high of 354 in 2014.

Timber Plus, the county's economic development organization, and the Coeur d'Alene Tribe are strenuously recruiting job opportunities to the area.
