Population

Bingham County's population saw 0.5 percent growth between 2015 and 2016— an increase of 225 people and a welcome change from years of steady population decline. In 2016, population estimates for the county was at 45, 201.

Blackfoot is the county seat and largest city with a population of 11,890 residents. Shelley with a population of 4,342 and Aberdeen with a population for 1,923, are two other major cities in the county.

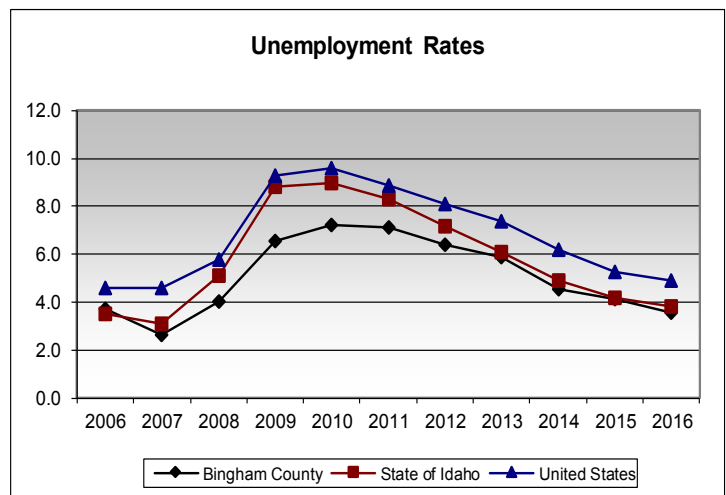

The county has an abundance of flat and fertile farmland surrounded by mountains. The Snake River provides water for fishing, boating and irrigation and offers a picturesque setting and a lifestyle few people want to leave.

Labor Force & Employment

The number of unemployed civilians in Bingham County has steadily declined over the past decade as total employment and labor force gradually increased. In 2016, the annual average unemployment rate in the county was 3.6 percent—the lowest recorded since 2008.

Bingham County 's economy depends heavily on agriculture but has a diverse employer base that demands a diverse workforce. The county supports a number of large agriculture-related manufacturers like Basic American Foods and Idaho Supreme Potatoes. High technology metal fabrication Premier Technology has their headquarters in Bingham County. Other large nonfarm employers include Bingham Memorial Hospital and the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes' gambling operation .

Covered Employment & Wages

Bingham County's large agricultural base goes hand in hand with trade and manufacturing to provide nearly half of all jobs in the county.

Government accounts for 30 percent of all nonfarm jobs because of Idaho's State Hospital South, the Shoshone Bannock Tribes, and several local school districts.

Wages in the county are lower than in most of the United States and fall in about the middle of all Idaho counties.
