Workforce Trends

Population

Kootenai County has experienced exceptionally strong population growth since the 1970s. From 2006 to 2016 its population grew 19.1 percent from 129,510 to 154,311 while Idaho's population grew 14.6 percent and the U.S. population grew 8.38 percent. The county's spectacular scenery, outdoor recreational opportunities, proximity to urban amenities and high quality of life continue to draw new residents. Strong population growth shapes many aspects of its economy.

The county seat, Coeur d'Alene, had a population of 49,122 in 2015. The populations of the larger cities include 30,453 in Post Falls, 14,133 in Hayden and 7,538 in Rathdrum. The county is closely tied to neighboring Spokane County, Washinton, with a population of 490,945

Labor Force & Employment

During the last 25 years, the local economy grew at an astounding rate on a diversifying manufacturing base, expanded tourism and new call centers and other business services. Tourism and population growth fueled the construction boom and boosted retail, health care, services and government jobs.

The opening of the Coeur d'Alene Resort in 1987 spurred tourism. The Silverwood theme park opened in 1988 and has continued to grow every year, hitting record levels in 2015. In 1994, the Coeur d'Alene Tribe opened a casino in Worley. Today, the golf course, hotel, and recently expanded casino employ nearly 1,580 people. Tourism employment peaked in 2007 at 9,050, hit bottom at 7,800 in 2010 and is on the rebound—nearing 8,200 in 2012.

Also promoting economic diversification and growth during the last decade was the relocation of many manufacturing operations and four call centers to Kootenai County. Over 4,700 people work in the county's manufacturing businesses while over 1,400 people work at call centers. Kootenai County's low business costs, good business climate and quality of life have attracted many new employers. In 2005, Buck Knives opened a manufacturing plant that employs approximately 300, and US Bank opened a customer service center that employs nearly 600. Biotech lab ALK Abello and manufacturers Berg Industries and Burly Products moved from Spokane County to Kootenai County.

Despite the recession, the county continues to lay the foundation for further economic growth.

Nonfarm Payroll Jobs for 2016

Economic Development

Kootenai County's growing population and economic development provide many opportunities for business creation. The number of private-sector employers increased slightly in 2016 by 1,600, employing 47,227 workers.

Jobs Plus, the local economic development organization, has recruited dozens of businesses over the last 20 years. Low business costs, a pleasant business climate, low electricity and natural gas costs and an affordable workforce are among the county's attractions for new businesses.
