Workforce Trends

Population

Oneida County sits on the Utah border in the northern end of the Great Basin against the stately peaks of the Rocky Mountains. A leisurely lifestyle, spectacular scenery and affordable land and housing keep residents in the area.

The population has been relatively flat during the last 10 years, increasing by less than 200 people between 2006 and 2016. Census estimates place the number of residents in the county at 4,324 in 2016. Malad is the largest city in the county with a population of 2,072 in 2016.

The county boasts wide open spaces, scenic canyons, springs, streams and reservoirs for year-round recreational activities. Many people working along Utah's Wasatch Front have chosen to live in Oneida County because of its surroundings and relaxed lifestyle.

Labor Force & Employment

Oneida County's diverse and skilled labor force experienced growth from 2005 and 2007, an 11 percent increase. Between 2008 and 2013, the labor force declined yearly with an uptick beginning in 2014. Before the last recession, the county had one of the lowest unemployment rates in the state and the nation. In 2016 the rate stood at 3.7 percent, increasing slightly from 3.6 percent in 2015. Between 2010 and 2016 employment grew 10.7 percent to 2,088.

The county's location on the Utah border provides additional employment opportunities across the state line. Businesses in Malad City, the county seat, take advantage of trade with Utah residents, who drive to Idaho for state lottery tickets among other things.

Malad City is the site of several local festivals including a popular Welsh heritage festival, rodeo, and auto shows. The local Chamber of Commerce is active in attracting visitors to the community.

Natural resources (which includes mining), trade, utilities and transportation and government account for 72 percent of the nonfarm jobs in the county. Government, which includes local education, accounted for an average of 430 jobs in 2016.

Wages & Income

Wages and covered employment in Oneida County are among the lowest in the state. Covered wages increase 15 percent over the past decade. The largest increase was in the Information sector where the average employment doubled from 6 to 12. Only two sectors saw wage decline over the decade—construction as well as education and health services. Professional and business services saw a decline in average employment with the closure of a temporary help service business in the area.

Oneida County's per capita personal income in 2015 stood at $32,056, up from $30,770 in 2014. The county's per capita income lags behind both the state and nation.
